FILTER FIRST

Zurn Elkay celebrated its 125th anniversary yesterday in Erie, Pennsylvania. To honor the achievement, local and state lawmakers gathered with Zurn Elkay employees to acknowledge the anniversary, and the jobs provided in Pennsylvania. In recognition of its long history in Erie, the company donated filtered water fountains and water bottle fillers to the Erie public school system. This ensures that every K-12 student in Erie can drink water that is free from lead and other contaminants. Congratulations Zurn Elkay, here's to the next 125 years!

HACK TO SCHOOL

Cyber crooks drained nearly $700,000 from the School District of Philadelphia after a string of digital heists, according to City Officials. City of Philadelphia Controller Christy Brady said scammers hijacked four separate payments meant for school vendors, including over half a million dollars intended for flood repair work, by manipulating electronic fund transfers. While the culprits remain unidentified and the investigation is still underway, the district has called in the FBI.

MARCHING

The Army's 250th anniversary parade (which some call President Trump's birthday party) has made tickets available for the event on June 14th. The tickets are free and two can be registered for each phone number. The parade will proceed in historical order, starting with the Revolutionary War to other wars throughout our history. The parade will then end with parachuters giving President Trump an American flag... coincidentally on his 79th birthday.

HOOKED FOR FREE

Mark your calendars, anglers: Pennsylvania is offering two chances to cast a line without spending a dime this summer. On May 25th and July 4th, the state's Fish-For-Free Days invite residents and visitors alike to fish on public waterways without a license. It's the perfect opportunity for families, first-timers, or any curious about the sport to enjoy the outdoors and maybe even reel in a new hobby. Just remember, while the licenses are waived, all other fishing regulations still apply.

NO MÁS FIESTA

Your local grocery store may be recalling salsa over concerns of possible salmonella contamination. GIANT in Carlisle PA has recalled GIANT'S brand salsa and MARTIN's brand salsa as advised by their supplier. According to the grocery store, customers who bought the 16oz hot or mild salsa, from either brand, should discard it immediately. The GIANT company is offering refunds through their customer service line for those who purchased impacted products.

Congratulations to Olivia and Matt Rindfuss on the birth of their son! Both baby and mom are doing well. Enjoy all of your baby snuggles!
