THE SPOOKIEST PLACE ON EARTH

Hersheypark is adding a new haunted house to its Dark Nights lineup this fall: Kill 'N Fill Garage. Inspired by the abandoned gas station trope in classic horror, the haunt takes guests through a junkyard, mechanics bay and boiler room, all built with recycled props, including more than 350 old tires. The new attraction replaces The Descent and joins four other haunted houses for the 2025 Halloween season. Dark Nights runs today through Nov. 2.

APPROVED

The PA Public Utility Commission yesterday approved a joint settlement filed by Verizon and Frontier allowing Verizon to acquire Frontier. The settlement, which was unanimously approved by the Commission, was supported by the PA Office of Consumer Advocate, Office of Small Business Advocate, and the Broad Horizons Lot Owners' Association. While the acquisition was approved by the Commonwealth, it is not final until both New York and California weigh in on the matter.

NO SPIRITS HERE

A new non-alcoholic bar is coming to downtown Harrisburg. Agape Elixir Bar, located at 23 S. Third Street, will feature trends such as CBD-infused drinks, kava, coffee blends, and more. According to the bar website, consumers must still be 21 and older. Curious minds can find out more information here.

THE SHOW GOES ON

Theatre Harrisburg, the city's community theatre organization, is about to start its 100th season. Dating back to the early 1900's, Theatre Harrisburg has strived to support the arts and the community that founded it. The first show of the season, A Gentleman's Guide to Love and Murder, will be running today. More information about future shows can be found here.
