GONE VIRAL

The PA Department of Health has provided an update this week on the number of measles cases that have spread throughout the Commonwealth. According to the Department, there have now been 1,505 cases spanning 45 counties so far this year. Of the 1,505 total cumulative cases, 290 have led to hospitalizations and 6 total confirmed measles-associated deaths. The best method for prevention is receiving the vaccine which has shown to be 97 percent effective. To learn more about the impacts of measles within Pennsylvania, you can view the Department's measles dashboard here.

PAYING THE PRICE

Walmart will pay $7.8 million to resolve child labor violations at stores across Pennsylvania after investigators found minors working beyond legal hour limits and performing prohibited tasks. The violations spanned dozens of locations and involved hundreds of instances of noncompliance with the state's child labor laws. The settlement marks one of the largest child labor enforcement actions in Pennsylvania history and comes amid increased scrutiny of youth employment practices across the nation.

WE ARE?

Last Thursday, the Trump Administration filed a complaint against Penn State University for its offering of in-state tuition rates to some illegal immigrants. The University said that they are reviewing the complaint. Many states including Florida, Kentucky, and Texas used to offer the same tuition breaks but ended them after the Trump Administration began suing last year.

VETERANS DAY

Connellsville, Pennsylvania will be observing Veterans Day with a distinct honor tomorrow. The organizers, Washington's Trail 1753, the Connellsville Area Historical Society, and the Great Allegheny Passage-Regional Trail Council will be dedicating a historical marker commemorating George Washington's many crossings of the Youghiogheny River. The marker will also commemorate his friendship with Colonel William Crawford.

NEW KIDS ON THE BLOCK

Orthopedic Institute of Pennsylvania (OIP) is officially welcoming patients at its new facility in Susquehanna Union Green in Susquehanna Township, Dauphin County. This new OIP location will offer Orthopedic Injury Walk-Ins, treatment rooms, physical and hand rehabilitation areas, and an interventional pain management suite. The effort to complete this project included collaboration with OIP, A.P. Williams, Laughner Patel Developers, and the Vartan Group.
