ROUNDING OUT

The Senate Republicans elected their leadership yesterday. While there was not a lot of change in leadership moving into the next session, there were some shifts. State Senator Kim Ward, who has served as the President Pro Tempore for four years, did not seek a position in leadership. Meanwhile, Senators Joe Pittman (Minority Leader), Wayne Langerholc (Whip), Scott Martin (Appropriations Chair), and Kristin Philips-Hill (Caucus Chair) will all remain in leadership. Senator Devlin Robinson is the newest addition, who will now serve as Caucus Secretary.

STATE OF THE WOMAN

Yesterday afternoon, the Governor's Commission for Women unveiled the first State of the Woman report in over 20 years, holding a press conference in the Capitol Rotunda. To collect data, the Commission sent out a survey, which had over 10,800 responses, and combined that with a statewide listening tour to see what women in Pennsylvania truly need. With the data collected, the Commission suggested several recommendations including expanding access to high-quality childcare and access to legal services for survivors of domestic violence. You can read the full report here.

GONE PHISHING

Following news reports of multiple "tech glitches" in recent days, the National Security Agency (NSA) reportedly lost access to its internal communications system yesterday that handles classified information. The NSA and White House have repeatedly stated there is no evidence the glitch is a result of a cyber-attack which follows the explanations for the previous mishaps with the FAA, Microsoft, and various baking institutions. The intelligence agency noted that all mission critical capabilities have remained fully operational.

A FAMILIAR STAGE

The Army-Navy Game is officially headed back to Philadelphia for the long haul. Lincoln Financial Field will host the rivalry in 2028, 2030, 2032, and 2034, adding to a slate that already includes the 2027 game. The announcement ends what had become the game's longest absence from Philadelphia since the 1930s. Philadelphia has hosted 90 of the series' 126 games, making it the rivalry's most familiar stage.

NIL

New Philadelphia 76er LeBron James has filed suit against an AI sport betting company, PlayVision Inc., developers of the Bron app. The purpose of the app is to provide users with bet tracking and odds comparisons. The company is being sued for name image and likeness, mostly due to its use of an image resembling LeBron in an ad, which features specific characteristics including his tattoos, voice, and iconic jersey number. PlayVision Inc. has yet to respond to the demand publicly.
